

OUR COMMITMENT TO FOOD SAFETY AND QUALITY IN CHINA

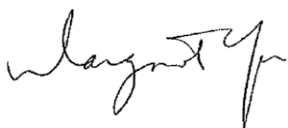

Recently China has been battered by reports of safety problems with everything from farmed fish to children's toys and vehicle tires. What's important is that for the past 20 years Dan-D Foods has always put food safety and quality as our top priority. We are committed to providing safe quality foods to our customers.

China is today one of the main source of food supplies to the world. We deploy stringent safety measures not only to China but to all the countries we deal with. An example of this is the establishment of our Qingdao Office back in 2005. Mr. Dan On had the foresight to staff this office with well-experienced food buyers. Their main responsibility is to work with suppliers to make sure food products are up to our required quality standards. Our inspectors even participate with the supplier's production and Quality Control staff to improve on product quality and develop new products for the North American market.

Foods imported from China by Dan-D Foods Ltd. are subjected to the most stringent scrutiny. We have the following safety and regulatory processes in place:

1. Every supplier has to be pre-approved by us. In order to be one of our approved suppliers, the supplier has to conform to the sanitary standards laid down by us.
2. Suppliers that are HACCP, ISO9002 or GMP certified are preferred.
3. Product specifications have to be reviewed and approved by our Quality Control Department.
4. Laboratory reports on products supplied to us must be sent to us from our suppliers on a regular basis.
5. Dan-D Foods Buyers and Quality Control personnel visit the factories regularly to make sure that our suppliers follow compliant manufacturing practices.
6. Our China representative office frequently conduct random on-site inspection with products supplied to us.
7. Once the products arrive in our warehouse it is kept in optimum storage condition to preserve their quality and thoroughly inspected by our Quality Control Department.
